Board Were Lost.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin wireless to Sayville, April 28.—The French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta has been torpedoed by an Austrian submarine, according to news received by the Overseas News agency. Part of the crew of the French warship was saved.

The Leon Gambetta displaced 12,416 tons, and carried a crew of from 700 to 800 officers and men. The cruiser was built at Brest in 1903. She was 486 feet long, 70 1/2 feet beam. She carried four 7 point six-inch guns, 16 6 point 4-inch guns and 24 3-pounders and was equipped with 14-inch torpedo tubes. She cost $5,880,000.

War Fleet Sighted.
London, April 28.—Captain Scott, commanding a Norwegian steamer chartered by the Belgian relief commission, reports the presence in the North sea of a German fleet numbering less than seventy-eight vessels all told.

Captain Scott, whose vessel just came to port, said while crossing the North sea he was held up by one of the German vessels. After examination of his papers he was permitted to proceed. The German fleet was composed of vessels of all classes from battleships to torpedo boats.

French Report.
Paris, April 28.—A communication from minister of marines relating the torpedoing of French cruiser Leon Gambetta at end of the Ottoman canal, was forwarded on the night of April 26-27 and went to the bottom in ten minutes.

All the officers on board perished at their posts. 136 members of the crew including 11 under officers, were rescued by vessels sent out promptly to their help by Italian authorities.

Vessel Is Beached.
Brindisi, Italy, April 27, via Paris, April 28.—The French cruiser Leon Gambetta, torpedoed by an Austrian submarine in straits of Otranto, has been run ashore. Fears are now entertained she may float away on the next high seas.

MAGNATE CONFESSES
TO LEADING ROBBERSTurnbull Prevails When $6,000 a Year
Managerial Commission Leading Bank Robbers.

New York, April 28.—Philip P. White, the $6,000 a year manager of the Massey Paint company in Brooklyn, on trial for leading a band of robbers who robbed his employers' bank messenger of $2,000 nearly a year ago, in the court room today, stretched both arms toward Supreme Court Justice Appleton on the bench and exclaimed:

"Stop. I am guilty. I want to confess my guilt before God and the world."

A court room scene seldom equaled in the annals of New York took place. White, trembling with emotion turned from the bench and faced the jury: "I am guilty," he repeated. "It is a bitter cup that is forced to my lips, but it is the Lord's will. I have lived two lives—a decent one and that of highwayman. I hope God will forgive me and I may live long enough to make atonement."

He reached up under his coat lapel and fumbled with a gold button, insignia of his membership in a fraternal organization.

And surrender my membership in the Mystic Shrine, he pleaded, handing the button loose. "I am no longer worthy to remain a Shriner."

ENGLISH PURCHASED
GERMAN WAR BONDS
WITHOUT KNOWING IT.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Amsterdam, April 28.—A number of prominent Englishmen including Sir Edward Goschen, former British Ambassador to Berlin have unwittingly become purchasers of some of the latest German war loan bonds.

The men in question were members of the Berlin Golf Club, which just before the war raised by subscription among its members a cash fund of about $65,000, for construction and equipping a splendid new course near Potsdam. Pending the beginning of operations, the fund was on deposit with the Dresdener Bank of Berlin when war was declared. The money was sequestered and now has been invested by order of its trustees in German War Loan Securities.

Sir Edward Goschen was honorary President of the club. Many of its English members are now in the civilian internment camp at Ruhleben.

War News Summary.

Military operations of critical importance are now under way simultaneously in these distinct fields of action.

In Flanders the Germans are once more engaged with the allied troops and are struggling for mastery of the territory near the Yser canal, where several days ago there occurred what was perhaps the most terrible struggle of the war thus far.

In the Carpathians the Russians are again resuming the offensive in another of their efforts to push over the mountain barrier into Hungary.

At the Dardanelles the allies have succeeded in landing troops on both sides of the strait, inaugurating the combined land and sea attempt at conquest of Constantinople.

A British correspondent in northern France says the German effort to turn the left British flank near Ypres has failed and the Germans have been checked definitely, although the battle still continues with violence. Military authorities are cautious of accepting the theory that the plan of the Germans is to break through to the English channel but they regard it as patent that such a huge concentration of troops on a limited front means that the present drive is preparatory to some more important undertaking. An official Belgian statement indicated the German attack is lessening in force. It is said the artillery fire against the Belgian front largely died away.

Russian and Austrian official statements indicate that the fighting in the Carpathians is becoming more intense. Military observers at Petrograd say more decisive operations than have occurred hitherto are expected shortly.

The situation at the Dardanelles remains obscure, although it is apparent that the French and British have made some headway with their landing operations. The Paris war office announced the capture of Kum Kaich on the Asiatic side.

The Turkish government, although repelling the repulse of the landing forces in some cases, does not claim that in any instance the Turks have been able to drive them back.

FOLLOW STATE LAW
IS OWEN'S ADVICE
IN PURE FOOD CASEAttorney General Declares Food Sanitary's Ruling Settles Nothing
Unless Higher Court Approves.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, April 28.—An opinion was rendered by Attorney General Owen to Dairy and Food Commissioner George Wegle today upon the general effect of Federal Judge L. L. Sanborn's decision in the corn syrup case upon the validity of the pure food laws so far as interstate commerce is concerned, where they do not parallel the federal laws on that subject.

The attorney general said that the state legislature has legislated specifically on a subject of benzene of soda, prohibiting the sale of any article of food containing any of the drug in this state. Such legislation, he said, is undoubtedly valid, unless in conflict with the federal food and drug act, but that it is so in conflict, he added, is not clear. In the administration of the law in the face of affirmative assertions of its authorities, to abandon the policy established by the legislature.

"It will be your duty and mine," said Attorney General Owen, to uphold and enforce this as valid until the other side rules by court of last resort.

He holds that the state laws prohibiting the use of "imitation" on labels for marooning cherries is plainly in conflict with the federal law on the subject, and that state statutes must yield to federal law.

"I think you would not be warranted in prohibiting the sale of imitation marooning cherries in this state," says the opinion in this contest, upon that question would inevitably result in declaring our state statutes invalid as being in conflict with the federal act of imitation marooning cherries."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Baltimore, April 28.—The local police face a mystery in the case of Miss Ida Robbins, aged 22, a stenographer who was assaulted with a hammer Monday in the office of her employer, Philip Lindemeyer, dealer in printers' ink.

Miss Robbins, with her skull fractured in three places, is in a hospital and is not expected to recover. Before becoming unconscious she said she had been attacked by a negro who demanded money. Later developments lead the police to believe that a white man or woman may have been her assailant. Why a woman should figure in the case is not explained.

FLOUR IN TURKEY
CHEAPEST IN EUROPE
DUE TO BIG HARVEST.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Athens, April 28.—Flour in Turkey is at present much cheaper than in any of the other countries of Europe. This is due mainly to the large stores of grain which accumulated in the government stores. Turkey's last harvest was estimated as worth $250,000,000, of which the government is said to have obtained four-fifths.

It is reported that there are heavy losses to the Government supplies from rotting, but there appears to be no reason to expect that the stock on hand will not last until the next harvest.

The next harvest, however, will be a small one, owing to scanty sowings, and many experts prophesy that the result will certainly be a general famine in Turkey next autumn.

Syracuse, April 28.—Theodore Roosevelt today told as witness in the $50,000 libel suit brought against him by Wm. Barnes, why, when governor of New York and president of the United States, he conferred with Thomas P. Platt, the "Boss." While he was governor of New York the colonel declared he discussed things with Senator Platt because he found out that the legislature obeyed his orders. The witness thought it best when there was any likelihood of that law-making body of the state disagreeing with him, to first go to headquarters and talk things over. Furthermore, as governor, the colonel said he did not want to run any chances of disrupting the republican party.

As president of the United States the colonel readily admitted he conferred constantly with the senator from New York, all manner of things. He said he valued the senator's advice and wanted to take advantage of his wide experience.

These statements were made in reply to questions asked of the colonel during the early part of his redirect examination, his cross examination by counsel for Mr. Barnes having been concluded today.

The colonel was most active on the witness stand. He clasped his hands upon his thighs and moved his arms and head to give emphasis to his words. He raised his voice and pounded upon the arm of the witness chair in answer to Mr. Barnes' entered an objection to the colonel's what they termed "his jesticulations."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 28.—Federal Judge Knapp, chairman of the board of mediation now handling the western railway wage dispute, conferred with President Wilson today over a protest the employees made against Charles Nagel, former secretary of commerce and labor and member of the arbitration board. They protested because Mr. Nagel is a trustee of the "Busch estate" of St. Louis, reported a large holder of railway securities. Efforts were made without avail to induce the railroad men to withhold their protest, because officials here vouched for Mr. Nagel was not personally interested in railways.

SEARCH FOR HUNDRED
INDICTED MEN TODAYDeputy Marshals Start Hunt for Men
Indicted by Federal Grand Jury for Conspiracy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 28.—United States deputy marshals today began hunting for the contractors, electrical fixture men and labor leaders who were named in sensational indictments by the federal grand jury yesterday, charged with violating interstate commerce and anti-trust laws.

While a variety of specific charges were made, including conspiracy, the allegation is that the defendants conspired to bring non-union articles and articles manufacturer outside of Chicago from coming into the city. It is expected that most of the defendants would surrender voluntarily. There are one hundred of them, the largest number ever indicted here by a federal grand jury on one charge.

Eighteen labor leaders, 41 employees and 41 firms headed by these employers were named.

Mrs. De Francisco is a midwife and when she received a professional call her husband accompanied her as an escort. As they were passing an alley running into Des Plaines street three men attacked De Francisco. The first struck him a blow with a bat with such force that the bat was broken, and the second man drew a razor and cut the victim's throat. It was all done so quickly, Mrs. De Francisco told the police, that she had no time to scream until it was over.

De Francisco previously had told his wife he had had a fight with some Italians in a saloon last Saturday night, and she said he armed himself with a revolver. Three Italians, with what appeared to be fresh blood stains on their clothing, were picked up in the street and two roomers at the De Francisco home were taken to the police station to be questioned.

Houston, Texas, April 28.—Central and south Texas flood conditions improved steadily last night and today, strengthening the belief that the worst is over although all interstate streams are out of their banks at many points, and damage is continuing. GERMAN STATESMAN
SAYS BELGIUM WILL NEVER BE GIVEN UP

Dr. Paasche.

What is believed to be the views of one element of German officialdom in regard to the terms on which Germany would consider peace was expressed recently by Dr. Paasche, vice president of the reichstag in a speech delivered at Kreuznach, in which he declared Germany would never relinquish Belgium or any other conquered territory which she can hold by force of arms. Dr. Paasche is quoted as saying: "The land we conquered with so much German blood we will never return. The diplomat's pen must not spoil what the sword has so well achieved."

RICHMOND CLASHES
WITH DR. MCCARTHY
OVER BILL FACTORYHearing on Bill to Abolish Legislative Reference Library Starts a Heated Discussion.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 28.—The hearing on the Nelson bill to abolish the legislative reference library precipitated a heated discussion between T. C. Richmond of the Home Rule Taxpayers' League and Dr. Charles McCarthy, head of the legislative reference library. Assemblyman Nelson said that he believed the department should be abolished and thought the considerable saving could be effected by the abolition. The principal argument for the repeal bill was made by Mr. Richmond, who told the committee that he represented himself personally, and he hoped he expressed the views of others.

Mr. Richmond argued that the department was unnecessary. He said that the people should not send men to the legislature who did not know what they were doing. He declared if the abolition of the department did not save the people a cent, it should be abolished to get rid of this "evil" which was a burden on the state. "I don't believe this bureau is needed," declared Mr. Richmond. "I believe the people want it abolished."

Dr. Charles McCarthy was called upon by Chairman George P. Hambricht, the legislative committee. Dr. McCarthy said he was unable to furnish any answer to the question just what Mr. Richmond proposed. If he wanted to abolish the whole department, that was entirely different question than from getting rid of the personnel of the department. McCarthy said that he believed there should be a vote of the committee on the bill, and that the state should not need a bill drafted by the department.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMP
NEEDS MORE FUNDSPetition Legislature for Special Appropriation of $8,000 for Toma-hawk Lake Institution.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 28.—The great necessity of an appropriation to keep the tuberculosis camp at Tomahawk lake, in the forest reserve, in operation until July when its $10,000 appropriation becomes available, was urged upon the finance committee yesterday by Secretary M. J. Tappins and Miss Katherine Williams, of the state board of control. Eight thousand dollars for this purpose is asked. Unless it is available to start this spring they say the camp, the $20,000 investment in the camp, which was established two years ago, must be idle and be a loss to the state.

Otherwise, said Mr. Tappins, the camp will be turned over to a keeper. He said the board cannot accommodate all the calls for admission to the camp. Mr. Tappins said that personally he was planning to send a number of Waupun road work or outside activities like those proposed by the tuberculosis camp. The committee advised the speakers that only the most pressing cases for money had a chance with members on the floor, but that this appeared to be in that class of appropriations.

MOLYBDENITE ORES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sydney, Australia, April 28.—A plant for treating molybdenite ores has been established here, and a first shipment of 100 tons of metal is to be sent to England in June.

The principal supplies of molybdenum have heretofore come from German sources, and the cutting off of these supplies has caused considerable inconvenience to the Australian metal industry. The metal is used in the manufacture of special steels, having the quality of increasing greatly the tensile strength of steel when added to it.

LOST TERRITORY.

CLAIMS CONTRADICT

Paris Statement Contradicts French
Have Made Gains in the Renewal of Fighting Along Frontier.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, April 28.—The German army report says:

"In the western theatre the English attempted yesterday to recapture the territory they lost in Flanders. In the afternoon they commenced an attack on both sides of Ypres-Pilckem, but the attack broke down completely 200 metres in front of our positions."

"A second English advance further to the evening had the same result. Here also the enemy suffered heavy losses."

"In the Champagne district a French group of fortifications was taken by us by storm during the night of Le Nasail and successfully defended and maintained itself against several counter attacks. The enemy again suffered heavy losses, 60 unwounded Frenchmen, 6 machine guns and 13 mine throwers falling into our hands. Between the Meuse and Moselle only fierce artillery battles took place."

"After their unsuccessful advance of April 26, the French made no more fresh attempts to attack our positions on Harminville-Wallerkeirch. At Altkirk one of our aviators brought down a French aeroplane. North of Pzrasny two officers and 400 Russian were taken prisoners yesterday and three machine guns were captured."

Yesterday's official French and British communication again furnished interesting proof of the means whereby the public in countries of our enemies are being misled."

Paris, April 28.—The offensive assumed by the Germans in the Ypres region has given rise to the report that they are about to undertake another carefully planned attempt to force their way to Calais. Military authorities here are cautious, however, in accepting this suggestion as an explanation for the Germans' recent activity.

"The magnitude of the forces concentrated by the Germans in such a limited front can be explained, it is believed here, by a mere desire to keep the allies active. The opinion is expressed that it was and perhaps still is their purpose to break a large gap in the allies' line preparatory to a more important undertaking."

French Claim Progress.

The French war office gave out an official report on the progress of hostilities, saying:

"To the north of Ypres we have continued to make progress. This is particularly apparent on our left, where we took six machine guns, two mortars, two anti-aircraft guns, and material at the same time taking several hundred prisoners, including a number of officers. The losses of the enemy were heavy. At a single point on the front we broke a large gap, we counted over six hundred bodies of German soldiers."

"On the heights of the Menne, along the front of Les Eparges, St. Remi and trench of Calonne, we continued to gain ground, advancing about one kilometer (1 2/3 miles) inflicting very heavy losses on the enemy."

German Guns Silent.
London, April 28.—An official announcement has been given out from Belgian army headquarters on the continent, reading:

"The situation on April 27th at 6 p. m. shows that the German artillery was evidently in the act of attacking the front held by the Belgian army."

"The French, aided by the Belgian artillery and infantry, have taken Lize and trench of Calonne, we continued to gain ground, advancing about one kilometer (1 2/3 miles) inflicting very heavy losses on the enemy."

The battle of the Russian and Austro-German armies in the vicinity of Stry in the Carpathian mountains has entered its fifth day with no signs of diminishing and with outcome still undecided.

Fighting is progressing in the mountainous districts and there is little opportunity of carrying out any of the maneuvers. The exceedingly strong Austro-German force, according to meager reports received here, is daily receiving reinforcements.

Repulse Allied Troops.

Berlin, April 28.—Including in the news given out is the following: "The Turkish troops have repulsed four landing detachments of the allies in the Gallipoli Peninsula. Mohammedan French troops landing with the French division deserted to the Turks."

CLUBS WILL HAVE TO CAN RECRUITS

Player Limit in National League Is Soon Effective—Crop of Recruits Lack Class.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, April 28.—With the use of the present week the clubs of the National League will enter the period of the playing season where in the squad is restricted to twenty-one players. This rule adopted at the annual meeting of the senior league on Dec. 8 and reaffirmed at the schedule meeting on Feb. 9 will have a deciding bearing on the pennant race this summer. Under the new regulation the total registration of the eight clubs will be 168 players between May 1 and Sept. 1. At the beginning of the season the roster of the league showed 254 players on contract so that more than eight players will have to be within the limit by May 1 each club will have to dispense with the services of approximately ten players. Many of these clubs have already anticipated the effect of the rule and began dropping players before the close of the spring training trips. A few are given unconditional releases but the majority were sent back to the minor league clubs for further development.

In this connection it is the opinion of the big league baseball managers that the present crop of recruits has not been up to the standard of past years. In a few isolated cases green players taken to the training camps have shown sufficient promise to warrant additional coaching and attention, but the general average has not encouraged the idea that there were any Ty Cobbs, Walter Johnsons or Jake Dauberts in the camps. The American league clubs will have a five player advantage over those of the National league for the junior league rule permitting an enrollment of twenty-five players per club was not rescinded to conform with the new regulation in vogue in the National. As a result there will be less curtailing of lists in Ban Johnson's circuit for the eight American league clubs had but 242 players under contract at the opening of the baseball year. This gave an advantage of thirty players per club and necessitated the dropping of but forty players in order to conform with the league code in this respect.

SUNBEAM COMPANY HAS STAR DRIVER

Corporate, Famous Foreign Race Pilot to Fill Gap If Regular Drivers are Unable to Leave Army.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Wolverhampton, England, April 28.—J. Porporato, winner of the 1908 Targa Bologna, is announced as alternate driver on the British Sunbeam team in the next Indianapolis 500-mile race, to fill the gap if either J. Chassagne or Louis Coatalen, the regular pilots, are unable to get away. The Sunbeam factory is working night and day on war orders at present, which accounts for the precaution. Porporato is expected to make an excellent substitute, in the event it becomes necessary to use him, as he is one of the best drivers of Europe, excelling Coatalen probably in this respect. Last year he teamed with Nazzaro in the French Grand Prix, but did not have much success, because of the unpreparedness of the cars. By no means is he a Spartan, which fact, no doubt, had much to do with his appointment to the Sunbeam crew, his country not being at war.

SOX STILL GOING BY DEFEATING INDIANS 7-4

Chicago, April 28.—Coming from behind and staging an eighth inning rally for a total of five runs, the climbing White Sox won their sixth straight game, defeating Cleveland 7 to 4 yesterday.

Eddie Collins and Fournier led in the attack when the rampage burst, when they let loose two triples, making the count seven for the Sox. A change of pitchers, Hagerman being chased for Jones. For seven innings Hagerman went along smooth until bumped by the long hit by Mel Wright, who was selected by Rowland to oppose the Indians and was replaced by Benz, who pulled the team out of a bad hole in the sixth. The Sox showed their grim determination and fighting spirit and won because they had the reserve punch.

Cubs Win 5-0.

Cincinnati, April 28.—Manager Bresnahan treated the Cubs to a shake-up, putting Zimmerman on second and Phelan on third, and the Cubs walked all over the Reds, winning 5 to 0. Zabel held the Reds with ease while the Chicagoans pounded Dale for eight hits, he a Spartan.

Braves Swat Giants.

New York, April 28.—The Boston Braves made their first appearance in Manhattan since winning their world championship last fall, and easily defeated New York 12 to 6. The champions hit both Perritt and Ritter hard, Rudolph was very effective early, but eased up. Schmidt, eleven run lead, Schmidt and J. Smith each hit a home run, double and single.

MILTON COLLEGE NINE TRIMS MILWAUKEE NORMAL TEAM IN FINE GAME

Milton, April 27.—Milton College opened the baseball season on the home grounds by defeating Milwaukee Normal 6 to 3 in an interesting game. Randolph and Sorenson did battery work for the collegians, while Benzine and Logic did the same work for the normals.

In the first inning Melges of Milwaukee swatted the ball for a circuit, and the college came back with a tally during their half of the same period by taking advantage of two errors and a stolen base could not get next to Randolph's delivery, except for a few isolated whacks, for seven innings, but Milton made a decided spurt in the second aided by a couple of passes and an error and timely hits, and got four men across the plate.

In the eighth Milwaukee got started with third and second full and no outs. A clean single drove in two runs, but the college tightened up and stopped the fun. In their half of the frame West got a clean hit for Milton which was followed by Hadden with a three-bagger, scoring another run. In the ninth Milwaukee filled the corners, but the rally was squelched on a couple of pop-ups and a strike out. Randolph pitched good ball, allowing 8 scattered hits, and striking out seven.

RECORD AUTO RACES PLANNED IN NEW YORK

Two Mile Race Track Will Be Built for Motor Events at Sheepshead Bay by Gotham Motor Buge.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, April 28.—Much of the mystery surrounding the motordrome to be laid out on the site of the old Sheepshead Bay race track has been dissipated with the announcement of the promoters that the two mile course will be the last word in automobile racing courses, with a speed of 140 miles an hour as the limit of reasonable safety for drivers.

The confidence of the men fostering the motordrome project is indicated by the fact that they are providing a seating capacity of 200,000 persons. Their estimate of this high attendance figure is based on the great interest shown at Indianapolis, where the auto races at times have drawn nearly 100,000 persons, with an immediate population of only 233,000 upon which to draw. On this basis, New York's 5,000,000 would flow out over the course.

Preparations are complete for the greatest race meetings in automobile annals, beginning next August. Two great meets a year will be held, with $50,000 in prizes as the attraction. In addition, a 24-hour midsummer contest will be featured, with a series of matinee events for stock cars interspersed here and there.

Carl G. Fisher, founder of the Indianapolis motordrome project, has accepted the presidency of the local association and automobile men of recognized authority are slated for the board of directors.

When the open championships are contested at Baltusrol in June, Harry Vardon rated the greatest golf player in the world, is expected to participate. Vardon was here two years ago, with Edward Ray, but was beaten by Outim in the now historic match that surprised the golf world. American golfers already are preparing for the second invasion of Vardon.

JIMMY GLABBY FIGHTS FIRST OF SERIES OF MATCHES WITH CHIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, April 28.—Jimmy Clabby, Hammond's middleweight prize, championed by Manager Larnoy Lichtenstein, will set out tonight on a strenuous pugilistic campaign. The pair of fistic notables will depart for Marietta, where a ten-round no-decision battle is booked for tonight with the Hammond lad opposing George Chip, whom he has already trimmed twice.

Clabby will start out in the finest of physical condition and that he will clean up in the battles he has booked for the near future. On Thursday night, Clabby and Lichtenstein will be at the ringside in Detroit to watch Joe Welling in his battle with Milburn Saylor of Indianapolis.

Clabby has closed a date with Al McCoy for May 1 at the Broadway Sporting Club in Brooklyn. This will be a ten-round affair if it goes the limit. Clabby also has a date for May 12 meeting a picked opponent making 158 pounds before the St. Nicholas A. C., New York.

According to word from the east last night, Clabby also will figure in the re-opening of the boxing sport at the Brighton Beach race track. The report had it that a show would be put on May 30, with the Hammond boy opposing Young Ahearn, the dancing master.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Under the rules of baseball a player who signs a side agreement by which he gets more money than his contract calls for on the face of it can, by turning up his manager or club owner, become a free agent.

It is decidedly questionable whether either Joe Wood or Vean Gregg will be of any value to the Red Sox this season. It is the opinion of many of the Boston players that Wood will never be able to pitch again, and there also is little hope for Gregg. Wood, in his warm-up seems to have a very lame arm, and as it is not showing improvement with work and warm weather, it is doubtful if he will be given a chance to show what he can do very soon.

Sherwood Magee has a bet that he will steal fifty bases this year. He says that the hitters of the Philly team wouldn't let him run last year, but he has a great protective batter behind him in Schmidt this year, and if he doesn't win his bet he ought to retire.

Manager McGraw, after the poor showing of Poll Perritt made in the exhibitions, is said to have decided Poll needs more work. There are others who are hoping that what Poll really needs most is Miller Huggins back of him there on second base to tell him how to pitch.

One of the Pirate outfielders is said to have tried to scare another one out of trying hard by telling him, "You haven't a chance to win a berth, so what's the use of exerting yourself." The kind of a man who succeeds ultimately in baseball or any other business is the fellow who keeps plugging when "there isn't a chance."

That old world series thing is fine for the magicians. A player who goes to team that does not look like a champion asks a couple of thousand boost, because he isn't going to get full coin. And a man who has drawn that money, and expects to draw it again, wants a raise just the same, on general principles.

Derby Day Bill Clymer, now at Toronto, not only took Roxie Roach from the Buffalo Bisons and tried, it is said, to get Joe McCarthy, but now he has up and taken the Bisons' trainee, James Hutch, who has a reputation as a conditioner, not only of baseball players, but college athletes as well.

Pitcher Earl Yingling of the Cincinnati Reds, who refused to accept a transfer to Salt Lake, though the Cincinnati club assured him that his full salary would be paid, has now been transferred to Minneapolis, that club taking over his contract, which has two years yet to run and calls for about $4,000 a year.

The Brooklyn club has placed the name of Roland B. Howell on the suspended list because he failed to report to Manager Robinson according to the provisions of his contract.

HARMONY PREVAILED.

Despite expectations to the contrary, the annual meeting of the Janesville Y. M. C. A. proved a most harmonious and enthusiastic gathering on Tuesday evening. An entire list of new directors was named, with the exception of Mr. F. P. Lewis, who was unanimously re-elected for a term of three years. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and they showed that instead of having annual elections, the last formal meeting was held in June of 1909. While nothing definite was decided on as to the future policy of the association, the new directors are all men who are actively interested in the Y. M. C. A. work and enthusiastic over the future prosperity of the association. Later these men will formally organize, elect officers and a general secretary, and it is safe to say that plans for an active campaign for membership will be started immediately. There is no reason why the Y. M. C. A. should not receive the hearty support of the citizens generally. It owns a magnificent building and its scope for a useful work in the city is almost unlimited. The protest raised against past methods of management were simply those of expediency and not a reflection upon the personality of any of the former members of the board of directors. That matters will now be conducted in a more businesslike manner is certain and these gentlemen named last evening to handle the destinies of the organization will find they have the hearty support of the members generally. It was a harmonious gathering and any bitterness that may have been engendered in the strenuous weeks preceding the calling of the meeting were evidently forgotten by those present, all of whom were working for what they considered the best interests of the association.

THE RIGGS AND BRANDEIS.

These are stirring days down at Washington. The employment as special counsel of Louis D. Brandeis to defend Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams against the charge of the Riggs National bank that these officials have been trying to wreck the bank to gratify a personal grudge, has occasioned much wonderment in Washington. With an attorney general, a solicitor general, an assistant attorney general, six assistants to the attorney general, twenty-five attorneys, thirteen assistant attorneys and eleven special assistant attorneys, why was it necessary to go to Boston and employ Mr. Brandeis at a very liberal fee, estimated by some lawyers at $10,000, is the question everyone is asking. During the present administration the compensation of some of these lesser government attorneys has been increased fifty per cent, so that "abler lawyers could be obtained. Then why not let these "abler lawyers defend the administration officials? Is the calling in of special counsel a confession that the department of justice is at present constituted is incompetent to handle the case? Or have the acts of these financial officers of the administration been such as to need the special and peculiar legal talents of Mr. Brandeis?

THE SERBS.

The Christian Science Monitor says of Serbia that almost within the memory of the present generation the Balkan question was a drama shrouded in mystery for the general public and expert opinion alone pronounced on the shifting scenes, as from time to time sudden movements toward liberation flung back the curtains from the diplomatic stage, where the great powers in turn have played so important a part, while the independence of the Sultan's erstwhile Balkan vassals asserted itself, often in ways not contemplated by concerted diplomacy acting in the general interest of Europe.

Serbia today merits the wide attention riveted upon her in the great ordeal which proves her aspirations to be genuine. Much may be known about her political progress expressed in a complex, but successful, state organization, and even more easily her advance can be traced, the paths of art, education, commerce, finance, and the modernizing of her agricultural methods, slowly transforming her oldest and still most important industry, for Serbia, in common with her neighbors, desires that the world should be informed of their forward march. The present hour is above the horizon and a friendly sympathy with Serbia soon finds that from some points of view—geographic and racial for instance—there are among the acutest of the many Balkan problems, and yet it may also discern that neither increasing material prosperity nor growing political strength alone could export the best solution. The national spirit and indomitable ideal, found wherever the Serb race gathers together, and which has survived the long periods of war, of foreign domination, of separation, and the tutelage of a somewhat fortuitous foreign diplomacy, cannot be denied its rightful development in the twentieth century of the world's progress towards the light, but the bulk of lay opinion probably agrees that none of the Balkan problems can be justly considered on their single merits, since the various racial and territorial claims have labyrinthine roots stretching far and wide into the mazes of past history, and for transcending the borders of the peninsula. For this reason many disinterested students have favored a Balkan confederation, as promising the best settlement, and it may be recalled that Mr. T. G. Thompson even formulated a scheme to this end. But the present phase of Balkan affairs is not yet finished, and the world's sympathy is wisely content again to wait upon the dicta of expert knowledge, but with this difference, that the final judgment shall be that of enlightened statesmanship based on the determination to insure constructive justice and international equity.

THE TAX PROBLEM.

The question is asked, "What is Professor Adams aiming at by his effort to increase the income tax?" It is quickly answered when the orders he gave to the income tax collectors when the law first went into operation is remembered, "Go out and get the money!" There are, however, men on guard at Madison this winter who are well aware of the fact that the tax commission needs watching and "forewarned is forearmed." They are not asleep on their job and down in the executive office is a governor who has been keeping close watch on the entire situation.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin sagely remarks that:

"The truth regarding the plan of readjustment which the tax commission favors at the present time seems to be that it will make the burden borne by income tax payers, already disproportionately heavy, more onerous than it was before. What is to be done is to make every taxpayer's burden lighter, by reducing the outgo from the state treasury. The state of Wisconsin is engaged in meddlesome activities that cost money and do nobody any good. Abolish them and cut down the payroll. With a diminished payroll there would be a chance for lower tax bills."

"The only possible objection to this program comes from people interested in the state payroll or humbugged by the pretense that popular interests in Wisconsin are promoted by the maintenance of an army of officeholders whose ostensible duties consist of showing people how to run their business."

The consolidation of commissions and bureaus and the retirement of superfluous officials to private life would be a consummation in line with the promise of the platform on which Governor Philipp was nominated for his responsible office, and would tend to make unnecessary the taxation schemes contrived with the object of extracting from the pockets of the people more dollars than they paid for."

Governor Philipp vetoed the anti-trading bill for what he considers very good reasons. He places his refusal to sign it on the grounds of infringement of personal liberty. As this is his first veto message to the legislature it has created considerable comment through the state, but taking it all in all the governor acted wisely in not permitting the placing of a law on the already overcrowded statutes that might be reversed by court decision as to its legality.

The good roads and corn growing contests which are being fostered by the Janesville Commercial club are creating interest not only in Rock county, but throughout the country at large. It is along the line of general action in bringing the country residents into closer touch with the city inhabitants and is beneficial for both.

The big Janesville fair is rapidly taking form and if half the exhibits planned for are on the grounds when the fair opens its gates in August, it will crowd the exhibition quarters considerably. Everyone is boosting the Janesville fair.

Make your plans for clean-up days. Look over the yard and the house and see where appearances can be improved. Be ready to aid in the general work of making Janesville the "Spotless Town of Renown."

The legislature is grinding away at law-making despite the fact that it is nearly corn planting time and farmer members are anxious to leave for their homes.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH Y. CAMERON

THE HARDEST WAY.

A young man was starting a small business. The question came up as to whether he should or should not seize an opportunity which involved his doing something not quite fair.

He thought it over for some time. He was a man with a good many ideals. He didn't like the idea of compromising with his own sense of right and yet, well, he did want to get on and opportunities like this one didn't grow on every bush.

He finally took the opportunity and this is the way he comforted himself. "I don't believe in doing this sort of thing but it's terribly hard getting started and I can't be too particular. Once I get my start then I'll be absolutely fair."

Swing One's Conscience Paregoric.

Everyone knows it's wrong to give babies paregoric because it stultifies as well as quiets them.

Not so many people realize that it's wrong to give a young conscience mental paregoric, because it has the same effect in that case.

One of the worst forms of such mental paregoric is to assure one's self that one will find it easier to do what one feels is right "by-and-by," "some other day," "a little later," "when he's gotten a start."

I'm sorry for that young man because I know just how much harder he is going to find it to be fair after he has been unfair.

The thing he is doing now is a comparatively small wrong, but it's two to one it will pave the way for bigger wrongs.

It takes ten times the strength to turn back from any wrong course that it does not to start in it.

A man's choices make him what he is. Each choice pushes him farther in one direction or another, each choice helps determine the character of the next choice.

Start right.

It's the cleanest, simplest way, the way of no regrets. And I don't mean that for business alone, but for any new relation of life into which you enter. Don't try to stall, but conscience with fine promises of what you're going to do by-and-by.

Questions and Answers.

Question.—I kept company with a young woman three years, left her and married one I liked better. She, after awhile, married, too, and went away. Her folks always wanted me to come and call on them, so I went one evening and when I came home my wife didn't like it at all. She said she thought it was outrageous for me to go there and talk over old times with them and leave her at home alone. She didn't know them. Did I do wrong?

Answer.—Does your wife feel sure that you did and still do "like her better." Tell her so once more and I shouldn't wonder if she would forgive you. It might have been better taste to take her with you, but I don't think it wrong not to. Perhaps it was a bit silly for her to mind, but jealousy makes us all most unreasonable.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please give me a recipe for whitening the arms and hands. Give some simple remedy that can be procured in the country.

(2) A recipe for manicuring finger nails.

(3) What kind of flowers would be best to carry for graduation?

(4) How can I wear my hair for graduation? I wish to wear a wreath of flowers. Would it be all right?

(5) What will make hair grow?

(6) Arms and hands that are rough and red should first be treated by washing with plenty of soap and bed time.

ing briskly with a rough towel. Afterward rub in a mixture of equal parts of a glycerine and rose water. The arms are rough, avoid hot or cold water; use tepid water, good soap and a soft towel.

(2) Use grease to make the nails shapely. Use grease at night; cleanse finger tips with it instead of soap. It tends to give them a satiny appearance with a tinge of pink.

The desirable condition for finger nails. When the surface shows ridges, and there is a general look of coarseness, I would advise soaking the finger tips for five minutes every night in warm sweet oil. The same bath may be used over and over again.

Push the cuticle back with an orange stick after soaking the finger tips. Always file the nails, cutting gives them an unattractive shape and makes them rough and liable to split.

The following is a good nail polishing powder: Oxide of tin, one-half ounce; powdered carmine, one-half ounce; powdered orris root, one grain. Mix by sifting through coarse muslin.

(2) Nitric acid, applied with a toothpick.

(3) Young people between fourteen and sixteen ought to start home about 11 o'clock.

(1) If you do not know how to play cards get some decks of cards. Rules for playing the game will come with the cards. It is very easy to play.

(2) Nitric acid, applied with a toothpick.

If the articles are very dirty and contain grease spots, dissolve a little strong soap in warm water and mix with it a small quantity of ox-gall; touch over all the spots, and rub them well with a stiff brush until they are entirely removed, after which the garment should be rubbed all over with a brush or sponge and warm water, to which should be added more of the soap and ox-gall. Rinse until the water passes off clean, then hang up to dry.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Do come down this path and see the sunset," Mrs. Scott, I just came from a seat behind these pines, and was slowly walking away from the promised view, Mrs. Ellison following her.

"If your husband were a physician perhaps you would," Mrs. Ellison was fast losing control of herself. "I would like the woman when the whole world phoned because her husband was phoning. Why, they actually reported that he had eloped with her."

"Our little thing," breathed the hostess, stopping in the path. "But I have ceased to pity her; she is of the same sort. She must have the attention of all the men can't stop through."

"This woman must have some real grievance or she could not be so vindictive," thought the hostess.

"I must go, Mrs. Ellison; Dorothy is getting uneasy. Won't you join us on the porch?"

"No, thank you; I will watch the tennis game, I think."

Mrs. Scott crossed the lawn to the porch. Mrs. Ellison, in the pretty child prevented any noticeable pause in the conversation, but that Mrs. Scott was greatly disturbed her husband soon realized.

Mrs. Ellison and the elder Mrs. Scott soon joined the group. The young mother excused herself to take the baby to its nurse. She telephoned with her eyes to her husband to follow her.

"Jack, what kind of a woman is that Mrs. Ellison?" she asked.

"She doesn't impress me as being very amiable, to say the least."

"She asked me to go with her to see a sunset and I couldn't decently refuse; she deluged me with a vulgar story about Mr. Morton and his stepmother. Do you think there can be any truth in it?"

"Laura, men don't go around with a tar brush blackening one another's good names. I wish women didn't like what I have seen of him. They will help make our star have a pleasant life. Let's not mix in their neighborhood affairs; we are far enough from town to make the dust of its scandal off our feet."

WOMAN'S BIG PEACE CONGRESS AT HAGUE CREATES INTEREST

Thousands of Women From all Nations to Attend Peace Meeting.

—Many Americans Present.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

The Hague, April 28.—What can the women of the world do to stop the war?

Within the next three days some 1,500 earnest, thoughtful, hopeful women, representing all the great nations—both belligerent and neutral—will endeavor to answer this question, as well as present for the consideration of the various governments the claims of womanhood born in the formulation of peace terms, and afterwards.

At the invitation of the women of Holland, supported by leaders in the progressive feminist movement in the United States—particularly the American Women's Peace Party—and those of the Scandinavian countries, the International Congress of Women opened its first day's session today in the "Bell House" of the city.

Among the delegates are many whose husbands, fathers, or sons are now fighting for their country or already have been slain, or maimed for life.

Leading the British delegation of 100 are two sisters, Mrs. Despard and Mrs. Harley, while Mrs. Despard said that practically every one of the 20 representatives of Germany have close relatives in the British army. Owing to the restrictions against indiscriminate travel these days between France and Holland—and through England and Germany—women so far have arrived in the city.

More than half the delegates are Dutch women, and a very large percentage of the others are from Denmark, Norway and Sweden. A party of fifteen, under the leadership of Miss Jane Addams, came direct from the United States, via Rotterdam, in order to avoid the vexatious delays of travel through various British colonies.

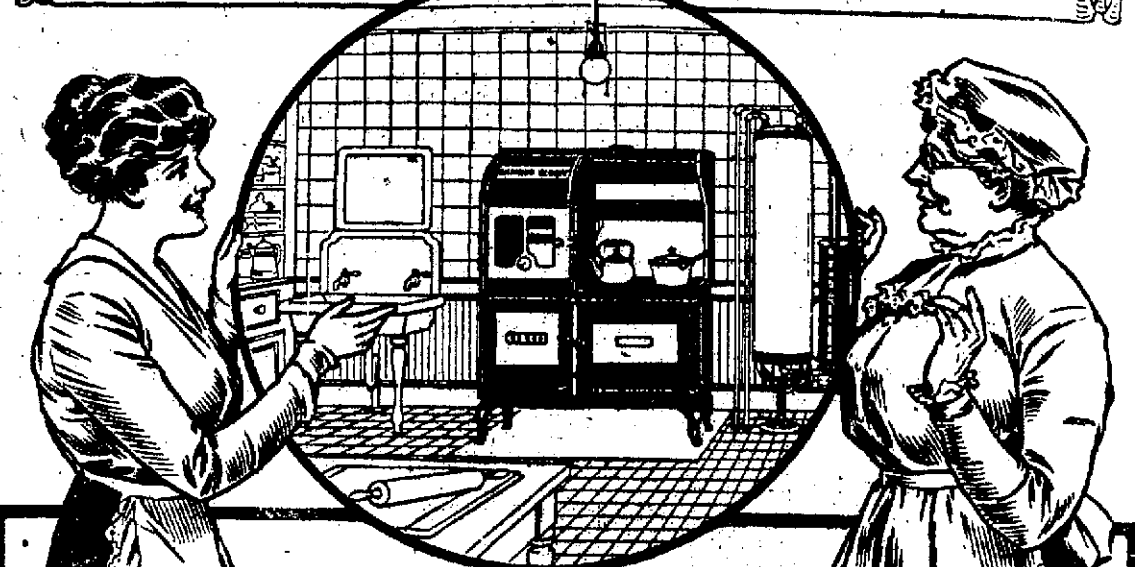

In order to prevent action being taken that might lead to a disruption of the Congress and thus defeat the objects for which it was called, the various women's organizations sending delegates agreed in advance that any reference to "relative national responsibility for the origin or conduct of the war" should be considered out of order. This suggestion was made by the central committee of Dutch women who arranged the details of the Congress and drew up the tentative resolutions which will form the basis for the general discussions.

The only possible objection to such a meeting, said one of the organizers, was that at this particular time, when national feeling is running so high, it might result in unseemly dissension. But we believe by taking this precautionary measure no such thing will occur.

A statement issued by the British committee, which has already approved in principle the program outlined by the women of Holland, although advocating some changes in minor points, says:

"We women cannot disregard the appeal so often expressed in letters from French, German, and English soldiers who have been suffering in the war. The war has been called upon us by the battlefield have been moving and more terrible is the silent appeal from the daily ravages of the war, the orphaned, the orphaned, the orphaned, and the starving."

"It is much more difficult for men to meet in conference, they are in the silent armies. But women, as non-combatants, have this right, and as guardians of the race they have duty. Experience has shown that women of every nation can meet in council and discuss matters in a reasonable and helpful way. A preliminary meeting of British, German, Belgian, and Dutch women has already been held. The time seemed ripe for this international meeting. It can hardly fail to soften animosities and allay the hatred which is a growing evil and menace for the future."

Women whose hearts have been drawn together by earnest consideration of common problems and common suffering will return to their own countries to influence public opinion to a gentler attitude. By this meeting together on neutral ground for the moment removed from national passions, a fairer view of current events becomes possible, and women of all nationalities can join in preparing the way for a better understanding and a permanent peace. Moreover, it was felt that it is to be heard in the treaty of peace, the way must be prepared now."

Not all the women prominent in the British feminist movement have lent their support to the Congress. Among those absent today is Mrs. Millicent C. Fawcett, leader of the constitutional suffragists, who not only refused to become a delegate but issued a vigorous protest, on patriotic grounds, against the participation of other English women. The militant suffragists, however, are represented by Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, while among the other English delegates are: Miss Olive Schreiner, the author; Miss Margaret Ashton, sister of Viscount Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States; Mrs. George Cadbury, the Hon. Mrs. Rollo Russell, and Miss Lind of Hageby.

The suggested resolutions contain the following demands:

That the belligerent countries publicly define the terms upon which they are willing to make peace, and for this purpose immediately call a truce. (The British delegates object to the word "immediately.")

That all future international disputes should be referred to arbitration or conciliation, and that the Powers agree to bring pressure upon any country resorting to arms without having thus referred its case.

That foreign politics shall be subject to democratic control, and that women be represented equally with men in such control by being given the parliamentary franchise in all countries.

The resolutions also urge the necessity of "so directing the education of children that their thoughts and desires may be turned towards the maintenance of peace and that they be given a normal education so as to enable them in any eventuality to act on this conviction."

The British delegation has offered the following additional resolution: "The international Congress of Women urges the governments of all the powers to take the manufacture and control of armaments entirely out of private hands, as a step towards complete and final disarmament."

When
Billy Sunday
Came to Town

By ALEXANDER CORKEY
Copyright, 1913, by the
H. K. Fly Co.

The reception which was given to Reginald Nelson's name made Mr. Graham scowl darkly as he stood on the outskirts of the crowd. "This is serious," he said to himself.

The people thronged to the platform to congratulate the speaker.

"We are going to change things and change them soon," said Edgar Prince loudly as he shook hands with Allan Rutledge. A friend of the manufacturer.

"Reginald Nelson has turned on the light, and Bronson will yet be clean."

turner heard his words and shouted, "Edgar Prince for our next mayor!" There was instant applause by the company, and a majority candidate was there and then nominated.

Among the others who made their way to the minister was Reginald Nelson himself. He had been lost in the crowd and had listened with profound interest to the oration of his friend. At the mention of his newspaper and at the cheers which the crowd gave when Allan Rutledge spoke his name the Englishman was strangely moved. Tears came to his eyes, and in his soul he said to himself, "It does pay a man to devote his time for the interest of his fellow men."

"Here is the real hero of the day!" cried Allan Rutledge as he espied Reginald. "Come up here, Mr. Nelson, and let the people see you!"

Reginald was helped up on the platform, and the people shouted on every side: "Speech! Speech!"

"Say something to them," urged Allan Rutledge, who was standing at his side.

"I want to thank you good people of Bronson," he began simply, "for the reception which you have given me. I just wish to state in this public way that it grieved me to the heart to publish the real state of Bronson's misgovernment as I have done in today's issue, but I did it in the interests of your homes and firesides. I believe you will not allow such conditions to exist when you know about them. My enemies will say that I have attacked Bronson, but I have only driven the knife of publicity into a cancerous ulcer which is poisoning the very life of our community. I thank you."

CHAPTER XVI.
Swift Punishment.

IT was after 5 o'clock before Reginald Nelson arrived at the Courier office on the evening of the eventful July 4. He was surprised to see his own private office open when he entered and to hear some one say,

"What's the matter, Ned?" he exclaimed. "Is your own typewriter broken?"

"Have you not heard the news?" asked the other in response. "What news?"

"The directors had a meeting this morning and gave me the position of editor of the Courier. I am sorry for you, Nelson, but that edition of yours today was a bad break, and I am afraid it has ruined your life."

"Ruined my life?" said Reginald Nelson in a dazed way. Then he aroused himself. "Get out of here, Rowlands," he ordered. "I am the editor of the Courier." The Englishman's eyes were shining as he spoke.

"Sorry, old man," said the other familiarly, "but you'll have to take your medicine. Here is my introductory editorial," and Ned Rowlands handed Reginald a sheet of typewriting. The Englishman glanced at the headline and saw that the article was entitled, "Greetings From the Courier's New Editor." He tore the sheet of paper into fragments and threw them on the floor.

"Get out of here!" he thundered to his former city reporter.

Ned Rowlands laughed sarcastically in his face and sneered: "You forgot, Nelson, that you were not working for the public, but that you were working for the Courier Publishing company. They have no more use for you."

"And I have no more use for you!" exclaimed Reginald, seizing the other by the coat collar. "I have wanted to discharge you for a month, and I do it now. Your place is vacant."

As he was speaking these words Reginald marched Ned Rowlands to the door of his private office and pushed him into the outer room. The ousted city reporter made no resistance, being alarmed at the excitement of the other, and he was hastening away when he ran square into a gentleman who was approaching the editorial sanctum.

"Excuse me, sir," said Rowlands, glancing up and seeing the face of Mr. Graham, white with anger.

"Come back with me, you coward," said the lawyer in a low tone. After the expulsion of his city reporter Reginald had slammed the door and had just seated himself at his desk to collect his thoughts when he heard the voice of Mr. Graham saying: "You are discharged as editor of the Courier, Mr. Nelson. We have no further use for your services, and you will oblige us by leaving the office at once. We have appointed Ned Rowlands in your place."

Reginald Nelson turned and glared at the intruders.

"Come, come," said the lawyer sharply. "Get out of here."

"Who has discharged me?" asked Reginald, restraining himself with difficulty.

"The directors of the Courier Publishing company,"

"Who are these directors?" asked Reginald. "I am a part owner of this paper, and I claim to have some voice in the management." Reginald Nelson had paid no attention to the business management of the newspaper, leaving that entirely to Mr. Graham.

"I control a majority of the stock of this concern," said Mr. Graham loftily, "and I have decided that such a person as you is not fit to be editor of the Courier. You will oblige me by leaving this office at once or I shall be forced to have you expelled by the officers of the law."

Reginald Nelson slowly began to see his hopeless position. He had looked on himself as part owner and manager of his paper. He believed that his course as an editor would be judged successful if he could keep his subscription lists growing, as a newspaper is saved or damned by this standard in the commercial world. Reginald felt that his declining number of readers was due to the incompetency of his city reporter, and the consequent loss of confidence in the Courier by large numbers of the working people. He had been assured by the events of the day that his bold attack on the city administration and his exposure of the evils which were tolerated by the Bronson officials had re-established the credit of the paper as a genuine friend of reform. He had an extra large edition of that day's paper printed, but after Allan Rutledge's speech at Bronson park the demand for the Courier was so great that the edition was soon exhausted and the young editor had been congratulated on every hand.

"I thought the Courier had deserted us," an enthusiastic advocate of reform had declared to him during the afternoon, "but your issue of today will make the Courier the most popular paper in all Michigan."

Encouraged by the marks of popular approval on every hand, and deeming that his position as editor had been assured by his Independence day edition, Reginald Nelson had returned to the Courier office in high spirits. His interview with Ned Rowlands and the words of Mr. Graham had almost unmanned him. He could not as yet quite understand the situation.

"I will admit the circulation of the paper dropped a thousand or so in the past few weeks," said Reginald in a perplexed tone, "but that was the result of a lack of confidence in us as genuine friends of reform. The edition of today has convinced the most skeptical that the Courier will represent the people, and I look for an immediate rise in the number of papers printed. I was going to order 1,000 extra copies struck off for tomorrow."

Mr. Graham listened impatiently until Reginald had ceased and responded quickly, "We don't want you as our editor a day longer if the circulation increased at once 10,000 a day."

In a moment the whole situation became plain to Reginald. The Courier had been purchased by the enemies of reform. His position as editor had been given him in order to blind the people to the fact that henceforth the Courier was to be in the hands of these enemies.

Reginald Nelson felt his strength returning. He met the look of the lawyer fearlessly.

"Let me show you something," then went on Mr. Graham sneeringly. He led the way out of the office into the printing room. Two or three men were already at work, and one of them was fixing one of the forms of the paper for the next day.

"Give Mr. Nelson a proof of that article which I wrote," ordered Mr. Graham.

The workman hastened to obey, the lawyer being recognized as the owner of the plant. In a few minutes a dampened "proof" was placed in Reginald's hands. "Read that," said the lawyer snappily.

In astonishment the editor began to read a bitter attack on the veracity of his Independence day exposure.

"The owners of the Courier regret exceedingly," the article declared, "that Independence day in Bronson was marred by the publication of some vile slanders against the honor of our fair city. The youthful editor to whom we trusted the paper has betrayed his trust, but he has been summarily removed from his place as editor and his past life is now being investigated, as there are some rumors of former breaches of trust before he came to Bronson. He owes the Courier Publishing company a large sum of money and action will be brought against him at once in our courts. The public is warned against him as a dangerous adventurer."

When Reginald Nelson had read these words he stopped and looked up at the lawyer with blazing eyes. "Are you going to publish these calumnies in the Courier?" he demanded fiercely. "Yes, and a good deal more, sir. We'll drive you out of Bronson in a week," Mr. Graham was grinding his teeth in a rage.

Reginald Nelson looked at him for a moment astounded, and then his own anger overwhelmed him. He seized the "form" in which the offensive article against himself was and swept it to the floor, scattering the type in every direction. "If you were a younger man," he shouted to Mr. Graham, "I would sweep this floor with you. Infamous rascal!"

Two burly policemen appeared at once on the scene, and the lawyer cried: "Take the madman out! Take him to jail for destruction of property! I will file a complaint!"

The two policemen dashed at Reginald, one seizing each arm. The powerful Englishman struggled with his captors. With terrific force he threw one of them against the wall and turned to attack the other, but the officer drew his baton and as Reginald reached for him he struck him a crashing blow on the head. The young man fell senseless on the floor.

"Take him to jail, take him to jail!" shouted Mr. Graham. The two policemen stood silent, gazing at the prostrate form of their antagonist. "He has the strength of an ox," said the one whom Reginald had lunged against the wall, rubbing his shoulder. "It is a good thing you hit him with the billy or he would have downed us both."

The policeman telephoned for the police ambulance, and in a little while Reginald was lying on a cot in the Bronson jail.

It was an hour before the injured ex-editor revived. He opened his eyes and gazed around him.

"Where am I?" he asked in amazement.

"In jail," said an attendant shortly as he advanced to the cot. He was under the impression that Reginald was in a drunken stupor, as he did not know who the prisoner was nor why he had been brought to the city hospital.

"Jail?" exclaimed Reginald. His memory began to return. He remembered his fight with the policemen in the printing room of the Courier.

"Telephone to the Rev. Allan Rutledge to come to me at once," he requested.

In less than fifteen minutes Allan Rutledge was sitting on the edge of the cot speaking soothingly to the injured man.

"My God, what an outrage! And to think that this has been done in Bronson on Independence day!" exclaimed Allan Rutledge when Reginald had told him his story.

Allan Rutledge at once went to the office of the jail and arranged that Reginald should be immediately removed to the Cameron home. "I will be responsible for him," said the minister.

When Reginald Nelson staggered into the Cameron home, assisted by Allan Rutledge, the good Scotchman and his wife were greatly frightened.

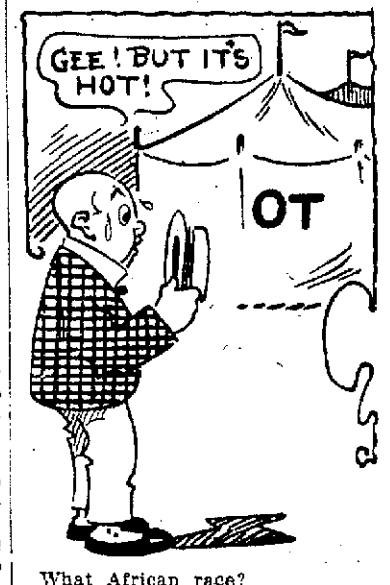

"What's wrong with our boy?" asked Mr. Cameron anxiously. "Not very much," replied Allan. "He will soon be all right. Let us take him upstairs to bed at once."

All that night the minister remained by the bedside of the ex-editor.

A doctor was called, and he examined the wound on his head and shook his head gravely. Reginald Nelson gradually sunk into a stupor, and in the morning his condition was very serious.

MEDAL CONTESTANTS MEET FRIDAY NIGHT; RIVALRY IS BITTER

Big Annual Forensic Events Are Being Entertained by Keen Rivalry.—Other School Notes.

The contests in oratory, declamation, poetry and extemporaneous speaking scheduled to take place in the high school auditorium Friday evening are being entertained by the keenest rivalry. This annual forensic night is looked upon each year as being one of the biggest events of the school season. In past years the contests have been attended by record audiences, and it is expected the gymnasium will be taxed to its capacity Friday night.

Contest in Poetry.

The contest in poetry does not take place Friday night, but earlier in the week. The selections are handed in before Friday, and judged by local people, who are well versed in literature, both prose and poetry. The Mahony medal for poetry will be presented to the one writing the best judged poem, and the winner will be requested to read his or her poem before the audience. Miss Irene Lewis won first place in this contest a year ago.

Original Orations.

The original oratorical event, in which each contestant writes his own oration, will undoubtedly be the keenest and hardest fought contest of the evening. Allen Dearborn, victor in the medal in as many years, is to defend his title against two speakers, who are regarded as near his equal. Stanley Horwood and Leland Hyzer will oppose him, and are rated as exceptional orators. Although defeated in the oratorical-declamatory contest a week ago, Horwood has worked on the hardest to get that he might prevent Dearborn from capturing the Lovejoy medal to keep. Hyzer is a forceful speaker with a masterful voice. He resembles George Yahn of past years in his appearance and delivery. Dearborn made a wonderful delivery and is deliberate in his speech.

Declamatory Contest.

The declamatory contest will be entertained by about the same rivalry as the original oratorical event. Miss Evelyn Welsh, twice winner of the Lovejoy medal, is to defend her title and attempt to win the medal for the third consecutive time, in which case she may keep it. Her opponent will include the Misses Ruth Doberty and Isabelle McLeay. The ability of Miss Welsh is known throughout this section of the state. She is a finished speaker and has excellent control of her voice. Her opponents will give her a hard fight and this contest should be one of great interest.

In the extemporaneous Recorder medal speaking contest, won by Victor Hemming last year, Miss Manilla Powers and Messrs. Stanley Horwood and George Snohn are entered. Some of the best orations are expected from these speakers, who have prepared on a list of some sixteen subjects. Each speaker will draw a topic from a hat shortly before they speak, and will be given a few minutes to prepare on what information they were able to gather previous to the drawings.

Oratorical-Declamations.

The annual medal awarded for the best oratorical declamation, not written by the contestants, will be the fifth event of the evening. In this contest, Harry Fuchs, Harold Stickney and Leland Hyzer are entered. A close judging contest is expected, the markings in the preliminary were close. The judges for the evening have not as yet been determined, but will be selected by Thursday.

Winner Goes to Beloit.

The winner of the oratorical-declamatory contest will go to Beloit Saturday morning to enter the Beloit college intercollegiate oratorical contest, held annually by the Line City college. The contest Friday night should be even more interesting since the three contestants, Harry Fuchs, Leland Hyzer and Harold Stickney, have been informed of this fact. It is the first time a Janesville representative has been entered in the Beloit forensic activity.

No Track Team.

There will be no track team at the high school this spring. Coach Curtis was able to entice but ten men into the track and field events. The students have missed several chances to enter interscholastic events at Beloit, Whitewater and other places, which shows the lack of interest in spring athletics at the local institution.

JOHN DENEEN IMPROVES AT MERCY HOSPITAL

According to Mercy hospital attendants today, the condition of John Deneen, the Milwaukee road call boy, injured Saturday night in the upper switching yards, is exceedingly good. Although much blood was lost and heart would not stand the strain, Deneen is improving slowly but surely to date.

A Physician's Opinion

A physician who uses Grape-Nuts in his family was recently asked his opinion of this food. He said—

"It is a concentrated palatable, nourishing and healthful food. Sweetened slightly and moistened with good rich cream, Grape-Nuts makes a very toothsome dish."

There's a reason for these excellent qualities in Grape-Nuts. This food is made of whole wheat and barley, thoroughly baked and processed to render it easily and quickly digestible—generally in about one hour.

Grape-Nuts contains all the rich nutriment of the grains, including the phosphorus, iron, sulphur, and other mineral elements so necessary for proper nourishment of body and nerve cells. It's a healthful food, and economical also.

TOBACCO PLANT BEDS APPEARING IN COUNTY

Farmers Taking Advantage of Fine Spring Weather and Work is Being Rushed.

While the white tops of tobacco plant beds are beginning to appear throughout the southern growing district, farmers conversant with affairs aver that the amount of leaf planted this year will not be as large as near the average of former years. Many growers, they say, are either planning to eliminate tobacco altogether or else plant a very small acreage.

Several growers are using steam tractors to steam their beds. Assorting operations in this city have sifted down to five warehouses and in two or three work may continue for several weeks.

Weather has been inductive to labor's returning to the open, consequent small warehouse forces.

Picking up of the remnants of the crop of last season still continues. Some growers held their shares over for higher prices and during the week were able to secure their own figures it is reported. Prices, however, did not top the high mark.

There is little activity in the market for cured leaf. Even old leaf transactions are few and far between. Shipments from storage here aggregate approximately three hundred cars during the week.

Who wore a blue hat, had disappeared and the posse was disappointed in its adventure.

Keep the Children Bright and Happy

Happy youngsters must be healthy. The digestive organs of children get out of order as readily as do those of their elders, and the result is equally distressing. When the bowels are clogged with an accumulation of refuse from the stomach the child naturally becomes cross and fretful from the discomfort, and is often punished for temper when medical attention is really what is needed.

The next time your child is cross and unhappy, without apparent reason, try giving it a mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild, pleasant tasting combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and is especially recommended for children because of its freedom from all opiate or narcotic drugs and its gentle action. It is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

Calls Newspaper Advertising Public Duty

S. J. Stebbins, Founder of One of Country's Largest Hardware Establishments, Says Honest Advertising Is News Public Should Have.

Opinion Backed By 61 Years' Business Experience.

By Andrew L. Demling.

"A little less than a year ago we put ourselves on record as firm believers in newspaper advertising, not only as a source of benefit to those who employ it, but as a public duty. We announced our conviction that, aside from its resulting increase of sales—it was one of those duties which the business man owes his public a service to which they are entitled, to keep them informed as to how and where they can supply their needs to the best advantage.

Today we believe so more than ever, and we find ourselves rewarded not alone by the satisfaction that attends the conscientious discharging of a duty, but we credit our increased advertising activity with having neutralized the effects of a bad business year, which we would undoubtedly have suffered otherwise."

Find Business Romance in Hardware Store.

If you should set out to seek romance, perhaps one of the last places you would look for it would be in a hardware store. Although nails and screws, and knobs and tools, have always possessed an almost uncanny fascination for us, perhaps because of our total inability to master their uses, they could scarcely be called romantic. And when we entered this particular store, and asked "to speak to Mr. Stebbins, Senior," the air of brisk activity which pervaded it, caused us unconsciously to look forward to an unromantic rapid fire interview with a nervously busy man.

In the tall, white haired man of 74, who greeted us with a friendly hand, was plainly written a story of business romance of the highest type—in his vigorous carriage, in his manner and most of all, in the eyes and strong lines of his face, one told the story of determined accomplishment of a clean but uncompromising fight, well won.

After sixty-one years of active business life, Solomon J. Stebbins has reached an eminence from which he can look down the years and secure a perspective impossible to a younger man. And as he smilingly asked me into his office, out of the rush and hurry of the first floor, I felt that this angle would be an interesting one.

Starts Business on $2,000.

"How have I won success?" he repeated, as we seated ourselves in his gratefully quiet little office. "Well, of course, that would be a long and involved story, but there is one practical fact that might be a little help to the young man in business, my advance has never been haphazard. I have driven my stakes ahead, you might say, and I have never let any discouragement prevent my reaching that stake. Then, as soon as I reached it, I drove the next one, and marked the next stage to which I intended to advance. I've been driving stakes for sixty-one years, now, and I'm not through driving them yet either."

"In 1859, when I became a partner in this business, our stock was worth about $2,000. Today there is only one more tool than we do, our yearly business is a good twenty-five times larger than it was even forty years ago, and our capital increase represents only the earnings of the business."

Advertising and Direct Buying Success Features.

"The two principal features that have brought about our success have been buying direct from the manufacturer, at prices which naturally worked to the advantage of our customers, and in keeping them posted on the quality of the material, prices they could therefore obtain better."

"For we have always bought direct, and we have always advertised, and advertising is one feature in which we have never believed in economizing—in good times, one feels that he wants to advertise and make even more progress, and in bad times he feels that he must advertise more to keep on his forward and upward path."

See Newspaper Advertising as Public Duty.

"Then, a little less than a year ago, I became convinced that while like most other hardware houses, we weren't doing enough of it. I had a talk with my three boys here in the business, and I told them it was perfectly right to go after the foreign business in the way we were doing, but that we must not neglect our home trade. I felt that it was a duty we owe not only to our business, but the people of our city, to tell them how our direct buying and other principles were to their advantage, in point of both quality and price."

"So we started in with an ad telling them just that. We were advertising newspaper advertising as well as ourselves, but it presented our attitude in a straightforward way, and told them frankly why we intended to launch our newspaper campaign, and inspired an attitude of confidence

Istria Province Around Which the Neutrality of Italy Hinges

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Today's statement of the National Geographic Society concerning the geography of the war in Europe deals with the Austrian province of Istria, which the Italians desire to secure, and which is said to be one of the considerations that Germany offers for a continuation of Italian neutrality. The statement says:

"Across the Gulf of Venice from Italy lies the Austrian province of Istria, formerly known as the Istrian peninsula, a thick, irregular triangle wedged into the North Adriatic, with its mainland base defined by a line from Trieste in the north to Fiume in the south, and with Pola at its apex—three principal Austrian ports—is first among all of the Dual Monarchy's maritime provinces. It is an outlet necessary to the empire's trade, and would, indeed, be a bright prize for the Italians."

"Istria, the ancient Histria, containing, with its neighboring islands, 1,612 square miles, is an Austrian crown land, and forms part of the modern territorial division known as the Coast Districts. Its coastline is well-indented, the shores in much of their extent are steep and forbidding. Mountainous rocks, masses cross the land from north to south, culminating in Monte Maggiore, about 1,600 feet high.

"Cliffs and bays are situated in and responsiveness on their part." Opening the lower drawer of his desk he brought forth a newspaper ad and handed it to me. It measured 2 1/2 inches, and read in part:

Advertising As a Public Duty.

Every man doing business with the public has certain duties toward the public which he owes in the form of honest advertising.

Honest advertising is news which the public must have to supply its wants to the best advantage. The Stebbins Hardware Company because we consider it a part of our duty to tell the public certain things about our hardware which everyone ought to know, needs some of the things we sell.

We believe that all the people in Chicago ought to know, for their sakes as well as ours, what we can do for them. So we are going to tell them. Many who want good tools do not know where they can safely go for them, and many do not realize the importance of getting the best tools they get any at all. We hope to make our advertising a real service to the public by telling them about good tools and good hardware in general, and about the good tools and good hardware sold in this store in particular.

Campaign Neutralizes Business Depression.

"And the eternal question, Mr. Stebbins, has it 'paid,' this advertising?"

"It has accomplished a unique service," he returned, as he rose to accompany me on a tour of the building, "because the situation is in a sense unique. It happened that we initiated this special activity just a few weeks before the war in Europe began, and it wasn't long until this country was feeling the inevitable effects in a business way. But it has overcome those effects so far as we are concerned, and has maintained the business of this year at the standard of our best years. As you have noticed, we are still at it, and as in any case of so profitable an investment, we intend to keep at it."

And as he led us with smiling interest through the many departments of the huge building, and told us of his early struggles and of the stakes he had driven and attained, and of how now he has only to oversee in a general way the business as it is actively carried forward by three younger drivers of stakes, who have inherited the father's enthusiasm—we found ourselves wishing that we could know of other 13-year-olds of 1854, the year he became a "business man," and wondering if the years had been as kind to them as they had to the man before us, in return for his three score years of clean, earnest fighting against their discouragements.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, April 28.—Lieutenant Blaine Dixon, U. S. A., has been appointed an instructor in the military school at West Point. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dixon of this city and is at present located at Laredo, Texas, on the Mexican border.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holden returned home Saturday from Long Beach, Cal., where they were part of the Whitewater colony during the past winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graham went yesterday to Madison for a week's visit with their daughter and family. S. H. Stewart died last evening at his home on Cottage street. He had been in poor health for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Reed went yesterday to Little Prairie to visit their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kruser.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed were down yesterday from Oak Hill. Their little daughter is suffering from a badly crushed finger, caused from catching it in the door of the automobile.

Fred Bueening is moving his harness store to the building he recently purchased on State street.

Excavation is being made for the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baade on the Burton lot on Fourth street.

Malcolm Tidmarsh was home from Fall River over Sunday.

Miss O. Kinsman, state president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. I. U. Wheeler, president of the city federation, also delegates from the various clubs, are in Beloit on the occasion of the formation of the First District of Federated Clubs which held sessions yesterday and today.

Mrs. Kinsman appears on the program and speaks on the matter of interesting young people in the work of federated clubs.

The cement foundation at the brick yards is completed for the present and the mixer will be moved to Park street to build the foundation of a new house to be put up by John Zull.

The anniversary of Minnieleska Chapter No. 149, O. E. S., was celebrated last evening at the Masonic temple. After the business session and the ceremony of initiation, the guests sat down to a luncheon, following which the worthy matron, Mrs. Eugene Westcott, called on Hon. N. M. Littlejohn to give an account of the eleven years of the chapter's history.

Mr. Littlejohn was the first patron and in spite of his 92 years, speaks clearly, with the keen humor he has always possessed. Visitors were present from Delavan and from Palmyra.

Eph. Goodrow of Woodstock, Ill., was calling on Whitewater friends Tuesday and Wednesday.

The region, and Istria's grapes and wine are famous. There is little garden, though considerable rich pasture land, and the forests of the peninsula supply the material for a large native ship-building industry. Its fisheries are very valuable, and it has a small mineral yield, coal, alum and salt. There is little or no local manufacturing, except the building of ships.

"It is as a shipping point, as a land of ports and strategic commercial and military naval bases, however, that Istria is most desirable. The shipping of its goods amounts to more than 7,000,000 tons annually. Pola, at the apex, the chief naval base of the Dual Monarchy, is one of the most important sea-power stations in southern Europe."

"The population of Istria is about 350,000, 40 per cent of whom are Serbo-Croats, and 34 per cent Italians. In its early history, Istria was a famous pirate land. The Roman banished the freebooters here. From the late Middle Ages until the extinction of the Venetian Empire in 1797, Venice ruled the greater part of the peninsula, while the northeastern portion belonged to Austria. Venetian possession is the history of Italy's present claim. The loss of this province would be a severe one to the Dual Monarchy's commercial ambitions and ambitions for Mediterranean power."

16 Great Service Branches—54 Maxwell District Offices—More than 2,000 Maxwell Dealers are always at the Service of Those Who Drive Maxwell Cars

When you buy an automobile you buy two kinds of service. First—The service given and guaranteed by the car itself. Second—The service given by the maker and the dealer while the car is in use.

The service the Maxwell car gives is known. 38,000 satisfied Maxwell owners have given the car the rough and tumble acid test of fully eighteen months' service. The Maxwell has shown that it is able to stand up under the severest use. In cities, over country roads, through mud and sand and up the steepest mountains, the 1915 Maxwell has made good for 38,000 owners.

THE SERVICE THAT THE MAXWELL MOTOR COMPANY GIVES

The service that the Maxwell car gives cannot be questioned. Any automobile owner from time to time requires service from the maker of the car he drives. He sometimes needs new parts, adjustments, etc.

16 GREAT MAXWELL SERVICE BRANCHES

The Maxwell Motor Company takes care of Maxwell owners by maintaining 16 great Maxwell Service Branches. These branches are in great cities which have been selected in such a manner as to thoroughly cover the United States. They can deliver parts to any Maxwell dealer or Maxwell owner within a few hours.

54 MAXWELL DISTRICT OFFICES

54 Maxwell District Offices are maintained in leading cities. This means 54 District Managers, each with a corps of assistants. A great big part of the work of this army of skilled men is to see that Maxwell dealers give real Maxwell service to Maxwell owners.

MORE THAN 2,000 MAXWELL DEALERS ALWAYS AT YOUR SERVICE

Each of the Maxwell dealers in the United States and Canada is an automobile expert. Anyone of them stands ready at all times to give advice and assistance to any Maxwell owner. You can tour all of the United States and Canada and should your car require the attention of an expert you will find a Maxwell dealer near at hand. If you need a replacement part, and the dealer does not have it in stock, he can get it for you from the nearest Maxwell branch within a few hours.

Maxwell owners never have their cars out of service for days or weeks at a time waiting for replacement parts.

The $695 Maxwell "Wonder Car" is the greatest real automobile value ever offered. The service that the Maxwell Motor Company gives is not surpassed by the service given by any other automobile manufacturing organization in the world.

All high priced cars have a sliding gear transmission. It is costly to make, but it's the best. If the motor has the power, sliding gears will pull the car out of any mud or sand. The Maxwell has a three-speed selective sliding gear transmission because Maxwell engineers do not consider any other type to be worthy of the Maxwell car.

The carburetor used on the Maxwell was especially designed for it after long and severe tests under every conceivable condition. It has been termed the "low up-keep" carburetor.
- Irreversible Steering Gear
The greatest margin of safety has been provided in the steering gear of the 1915 Maxwell. The Maxwell irreversible steering mechanism is superior over every other type lies in its many adjustments. In short, the Maxwell steering gear has four times the adjustment of any other kind.
- Heavy Car Comfort

Experience of Prussian City of Memel Shows War's Horrors

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Memel, East Prussia, April 28.—For several months and a half the war has been more than a rumor for the inhabitants of the city of Memel, tucked away in northernmost East Prussia on the Baltic. Beyond the mobilization of 600 of the regular troops things had gone on much the same as usual.

Then, suddenly, on the 17th of March, there came the report that the Cossacks were coming from the North and East, and Memel began to get its first direct impression of the gigantic conflict. In the days that followed it was to get other and more terrible impressions.

While officials frantically appealed for help from the military authorities, the little band of Landsturm slowly fell back from one defensive position to another before the oncoming Russians, made one final but ineffective stand at the outlying village of Althof, and on Thursday night, March 18, were forced to let the Russians enter.

Swept The City. Burning and pillaging as they went, the Russian troops swept into Memel. As terrified villagers fled from their windows, the soldiers marched through Memel's main street, smashing in the store windows, stopping only long enough to help themselves to tobacco and liquor.

Memel, however, had 24 hours' notice and had utilized the time for partial flight. Terrified villagers from the outlying districts had come pouring into town with stories of dwellings looted and burned, relatives and friends seized and borne off to Russia by Russian civilians following the wake of the soldiers, and of a countless number of other horrors.

Eight thousand of the population, thanks to one final stand of the Landsturm at the Karisbrücke with a machine gun, succeeded in getting out of Memel with a few belongings, and onto the long trip of sand dunes known as the "Kursche Dohrning" that runs in a curving direction southward toward Königsberg.

Ice Saves Them. Few of the fugitives had had time to bring any food, and on the narrow strip of sand there was nothing on which they could subsist. The bitter winter weather that had made the flight so terrible, however, proved to be their salvation, for it froze the shallow water between the sand and the mainland so that sufficient quantities to keep soul and body together.

Generators of the fate that might have befallen those who left behind, suffering terribly in the bitter weather, the fugitives waited, hoping desperately that the reinforcements for which they had appealed so earnestly had arrived. But no Russian soldiers out. There they remained a week, or for four days after the invaders had been expelled with great losses.

For three days the Russian troops camped about the town. Their swoop on Memel seemed to have been inspired by no tactical reasons, for they did not sink the ships in the landlocked harbor nor fortify themselves. Germany's threat that Russian towns would be destroyed if they continued to burn down German villages is believed to have restrained them from destroying Memel.

Raided the Stores. Instead they cleaned out virtually every delicatessen store, every provision market and every wine and liquor establishment in Memel. Individual soldiers, prowling about, entered the homes of inhabitants and added to their fear by their depredations and their threats.

On Sunday the German reinforcements

ments began to arrive, and the Russians began to leave. For several hours later a trail of dead bodies from the center of the little city of Althof—or its remnants—told the story of the departure. When the last Russian soldier had gone, the inhabitants ventured out of their homes. Corpses were picked up and piled together preparatory to burial in a common grave.

This gruesome work was still in progress when an Associated Press correspondent reached Memel. One of the first to reach the scene was Oberpräsident von Batschki of the province of East Prussia, and he began at once to sift out the truth from the mass of rumor and hearsay regarding the invasion.

Shortly he determined that between 500 and 600 persons in the Memel part of the province had been carried off to Russia, that 12 civilians had been killed, that one woman took poison when she was attacked by a Russian soldier and that another died from such an attack, that the second mayor of the city had been dangerously and perhaps fatally wounded by a bayonet in the abdomen, and that 19 German soldiers had been killed in dispersing the Russians.

The Associated Press correspondent was able to retrace the route taken by the Russians as they advanced on Memel from the nearby border, to the north and to the east, and to see a panorama of desolation such as now is common in East Prussia, and no where else in Europe. Belgium is shell-riddled. East Prussia is burned down and devastated. The route led up along the Baltic coast to the remains of the little village of Nimmersau—a typical town, the principal building in which had been the inn. It had been the objective of the Russians as they swept over the border from Poland; they had stayed long enough to all but wipe it off the map.

Pitiful Tales. The few inhabitants of the village who had mustered up courage to stay, or who had returned, told pitiful tales. One old man, with one ragged suit of clothing, a battered hat and broken umbrella as his sole remaining possessions, had left Nimmersau with his two young daughters when the Russians approached, leaving his wife and five young daughters behind.

He came back to find parts of the walls of his home still standing, the interior a smoking ruin, and his wife and children gone. The tears rolled down his cheeks and he told the bitter cold as he told the story.

Not far from this scene of devastation was another, this time the remains of what had been a more pretentious building, the euphonious but mocking name of "Kursche Dohrning." Never Satisfied. The smoke still eddied through the ruins of the walls, and in what had been an Italian or a mass of wrecked marble tables, there stared out the sign "Please do not pick the flowers."

Again the southward, then to the eastward, and finally back to Memel the route led, with the picture always the same, the devastation varying only in degree. Yet not one effect of gun fire or shelling. Each had been systematically plundered and then fired.

As the correspondent left Memel, bound for more southerly scenes of the same or a worse character, Russian prisoners were just completing the burial of their 171 comrades who had had a part in the destruction of the district. Every hundred yards there were teams hauling fugitives and their few remaining belongings, fleeing from possible future invasion or because there was nothing left for them to stay for.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY NATURALLY THAT NOBODY CAN TELL.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at an drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking the small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

Busurated Magnesia For Stomach Troubles

In these days of almost universal indigestion, dyspepsia, and other troubles the recent announcement by a great specialist that pure busurated magnesia is an almost infallible remedy for nearly all forms of stomach trouble will come as a welcome surprise to all sufferers. A teaspoonful in a little water immediately after eating, or whenever pain is felt, neutralizes the excess acid and instantly cures the fermentation and pain. Those who use busurated magnesia regularly for a week or two usually find that the trouble has entirely disappeared, and normal digestion is completely restored. Advertisement
